Chef Tested and Approved—Eleven Regina® Vinegar and Cooking Wine Products Earn Prestigious American Culinary Federation Seal of Approval

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., January 7, 2010 —The American Culinary Federation (ACF), the nation's premier organization for professional chefs and cooks, has awarded B&G Foods with its prestigious ACF Seal of Approval for eleven of its Regina brand vinegars and cooking wines. The Regina products were submitted for extensive testing and were approved by ACF's Seal of Approval Committee.

James Taylor, CEC, AAC, MBA, who was chair of the committee at the time of the products' testing, applied the organization's rigorous testing criteria to all of B&G Foods' Regina vinegars and cooking wines, evaluating for application, physical properties, performance and accuracy of labels and marketing materials.

"These products worked very well in all applications and adapted well to new uses," Taylor said. "Our team of chef evaluators agreed that the Regina products passed all necessary criteria, and we are proud to present them with the ACF Seal of Approval."

"B&G Foods is thrilled for our Regina vinegars and cooking wines to receive the ACF Seal of Approval," said Brandi Unchester, director of marketing for the Regina brand. "B&G Foods understands the importance quality ingredients play in meal preparation. We have always strived to provide premium products to professional and at-home chefs alike. With the ACF Seal of Approval, the most discriminating users know they can trust Regina."

The Regina line includes wine vinegars, balsamic vinegars and cooking wines. Regina's wine vinegars, available in red, white, and new Velvet flavor, are made from a unique blend of fine wines, giving them a distinct, complex flavor. They can be found in supermarkets and restaurants across the United States.

Regina balsamic vinegars are aged in wooden casks and imported from Modena, Italy. They are available in traditional and raspberry flavors. Regina balsamics add full-bodied flavor to salads, marinades, sauces and other favorite recipes.

Cooking with wine is a long-standing technique used by gourmets. Regina cooking wines add a subtle, elegant flavor to everything from meats, poultry and fish to stews, marinades, dressings and bastes. Regina offers cooking wines in sherry, burgundy and sauterne varieties.
